

AN ELOPEMENT CUT SHORT.

The Prospective Groom Arrested in Hill County For Abduction.

Walter Mahoney, an elderly farmer living near Robinson, made affidavit in Justice Harrison's court this morning charging Jim Mooney with abduction.

About 7 o'clock this morning Mooney passed through the city in a buggy in company with Miss Anna Mahoney, the fourteen-year-old daughter of the complainant.

Sheriff Burke wired officers in the adjacent counties to look out for the parties, and this afternoon he received a telegram from Sheriff Bell at Hillsboro, stating that he had the parties in custody. Sheriff Burke and Mr. Mahoney will leave on this evening's train for Hillsboro.

Try Us on Once.

No one knows what he's losing by buying tailor-made clothes when he could have ready-made clothes just as good in every respect for probably half the money. You can get them here. We've reformed the ready-made system till it's equal to the tailor-made in every respect except price. Nice business suits, good, serviceable, and well made, need not cost more than $12, $15, $18 or $20. A fine fit is included in the price. And as for style and finish we challenge comparison with the output of any tailoring establishment in this city, or elsewhere. The goods, too, cannot be excelled by those carried in stock by the merchant tailors. Try us on once and you will never leave us. You know who we are—the J. H. Wood Clothing company.

Colored Ball Tossers.

Waco's colored base ball team, the Nationals, returned this morning over the M. K. & T. Rain interfered with Sunday's game, but on yesterday the Nationals defeated the Dallas team by a score of 9 to 5. There is no regularly organized league among the colored players, but the crack teams, by invitation, visit each other and battle for supremacy. The Nationals have played the clubs from San Antonio, Austin, Galveston and Dallas, 13 games in all, and have been successful in 10 of the contest.

Gone to Houston.

W. W. Dexter has moved his Trade Review, formerly printed in this city, from Fort Worth to Houston. He starts out there with the following strong endorsement:

Houston Cotton Exchange and Board of Trade, Houston, Texas, May 13, 1894.—Mr. W. W. Dexter, Dear Sir: It having been brought to the attention of the Houston Cotton Exchange and Board of Trade that the removal of the "Trade Review" from Fort Worth to this city is in contemplation, it is their opinion that the establishment of a journal here—conducted in the manner that has been proposed—advocating all our interests and setting forth our many advantages as a commercial mart will be of great benefit to Houston.

Respectfully,
H. W. GABROW,
President.

G. W. KIDD, Secretary.
And the Post greets him thus cordially:

Mr. W. W. Dexter, editor and publisher of the Fort Worth Trade Review, is in the city, and on yesterday closed negotiations for removing his splendid publication to Houston.

This will prove a valuable acquisition to Houston, and the directors of the board of trade so recognized it when they endorsed the proposition for the removal. The Trade Review has done a great work for Fort Worth, being one of the most valuable auxiliaries in the upbuilding of that city.

Mr. Dexter is a live man, an expert in his business, and a most estimable gentleman, and in returning here, Houston but claims her own, as he was a resident here several years ago. The Post bids Mr. Dexter and his charming wife a glad welcome back home.

Watt Howard Wept.

Mr. E. Johnson, a popular mechanic who has resided in this city for several years, left on the Katy for New York, where he will embark on an outgoing steamer for his native home, Kalmar, Sweden. Mr. Johnson has made many friends during his residence in this country who regret his departure and who predict that he will some day return to the home of his adoption. As a mark of esteem many fellow-workmen were at the depot to say good bye and to express regret at his leaving.

Some of those present declare that Watt Howard actually wept at the loss of his companion.

Newsboys on a Strike.

The newsboys who have been in the habit of selling the Dallas News on the streets struck this morning. P. R. Napier, the Waco agent, has only allowed them 1½ cents per copy on sales, and they struck for 2 cents. One or two of the boys deserted the ranks of the strikers and returned to work, but the majority hold out and say they will use force if they can only find the deserters out of sight of a policeman.
